Rain this morning followed the warm spell of yesterday and the circus. It commenced to rain after midnight, and up to 7 o'clock this morning the precipitation amounted to .57 of an inch, according to the rain gauge at Hill and Son's store.

Taking the record of Hill and Son for the past eight years, the date of the first seasonal rain seems to cut no particular figure as to the total for the different seasons.

Only twice in that period has the first fall come in September. The first was in 1908-09, when 13 of an inch was precipitated on September 7, with .03 on the 22d, .44 on the 24th and .20 on the 25th, making a total of .80 to September 30. The total for the season was 15.84. The second time was in 1911-12, when the fall on September 29 was .26, followed on the 30th with .23, making .49 to September 30. The total for that season was only 7.86. From this it will be seen that in the eight years one good season and one poor season resulted from the first rains coming in September.

The season 1915-16 was the high record, and in the season rains did not commence until November 6.

Crop Conditions

Walnuts, beets and beans are liable to damage by rain, but the fall of last night will not affect them in the least, should it clear up at once.

A week of continuous damp and cloudy weather would do considerable damage.

Walnuts

It is estimated that about 50 per cent of the walnut crop has been harvested and delivered. The rain of last night will not interfere seriously with the work of picking up the nuts now on the ground. With those now on the ground picked up and placed on drying trays, the damaging effect would be nil, with warm weather in the next two or three days.

Beans

The bean crop on the San Joaquin ranch is practically all in the warehouses. There is not to exceed 4000 sacks still in the fields. All have been threshed. Those remaining in the fields were taken care of at once.

In the Smeltzer, Garden Grove and other districts where the crop is later, there are still many tons in windrows. It is estimated that at least one-third of the total county production is unthreshed, and subject to serious damage if rain and cloudy weather continue for any great period.

Beets

Sixty per cent of the beet crop of the county has been gathered and delivered to the factories, according to statements of factory officials. No damage will result unless present weather conditions should extend over a period of many days. In this event damage would result by beets starting to grow, which would reduce their sugar content.

Has Wood to Give Away For Cutting, Finds No Takers

Men Needing It Will Take It
If City Electrician
Will Cut It

Even with winter approaching, City Electrician Wm. McCulloch can't give wood away. He has found a number of men who may have to depend on charity for stove wood, but they won't take the wood McCulloch offers unless he cuts it for them.

After examining a big pepper tree on Sycamore street between Second and Third, McCulloch ordered the half of the tree hanging over high voltage wires from the Edison plant across the street cut down. He feared the tree would break this winter and start trouble.

After the huge tree limbs were down, McCulloch tried to give them away. The wood was free, all the person receiving it had to do was to cut it.

McCulloch has found no taker. "It reminds me of the story of a man the people of a town were taking out to the cemetery to kill because he was too lazy to work," said McCulloch. "He simply wouldn't work. They were hauling him out to the cemetery, when they met a farmer, to whom they explained their purpose. The farmer was a sympathetic kind of a soul, and he said that he would give two sacks of corn to the man if he was allowed to live. The lazy man raised up and said, 'Is that corn shelled?' 'No, it is on the cob,' replied farmer. 'Drive on to the cemetery,' said the lazy man."

FIX LONDON AS SCENE FOR ALLY PARLEY TO TIGHTEN ON TEUTONS

ROME, Sept. 30.—The inter-parliamentary conference which was to have been held in Rome during October has been postponed and will be held in London next spring.

It is understood that the allies will discuss plans for more stringent measures tending to cut the central powers off from communication with the outside world and already are seeking the acquiescence of neutrals to the new plans which are now under discussion.

JUDGE THOMAS ADVISES DRY TO VOTE FOR R. C. HARBISON

This morning Superior Judge W. H. Thomas declared that he can see no possibility for the election of J. S. Edwards as congressman of the Eleventh Congressional District. In a strong statement, he has advised dry voters to vote for R. C. Harbison of San Bernardino, the Republican nominee.

"I have been silent," said Judge Thomas, "on the matter of candidates for Congress thus far for the reason that I have been laboring under the false impression that in case of an election contest being instituted by any of these candidates who might be defeated against the one who appeared to have been elected, and that because of my having advocated the candidacy of one of them, I might be disqualified to try said contest. Upon looking into this matter, however, I find that there is no legal possibility of such a contest being heard by any judge, such contests being disposed of entirely by the House of Representatives. Subdivision 1 of section 5 of article I of the Constitution of the United States reads as follows: 'Each House shall be the judge of elections,

WELLS IN FIGHT ON ATTORNEYS ASKS DAMAGES OF $120,000

Reputation Blackened By Alleged Libelous Mail Matter, Charge

Members of the Orange County Bar Association are sued for $120,000 damages because of their activity in endeavoring to prevent T. Alonzo Wells, formerly of Huntington Beach, from practicing law.

The complaint in the case was filed in the federal court in Los Angeles this morning.

Wells is fighting back in a variety of ways. He is not only suing, but he is filing numerous affidavits in his efforts to defeat the proposals of the Orange county attorneys that he be disbarred.

The story of Wells and his efforts to be admitted to practice and his admission to practice dates back a number of years. While at Huntington Beach he studied law, and on two or three occasions he took the bar examinations, but at each appearance he found that the county bar association was against him.

Back to 1899

Among allegations presented was that in 1899 Wells was twice tried in this county on a felony charge. Both juries disagreed. Another was that a judgment against him had long stood on the records of the county. More recent charges against him involve his relations to a social club that had a meteoric existence at Huntington Beach. In connection with a trial in that case, Wells was prosecuted on a charge of tampering with witnesses. He was not convicted.

Wells went to Nevada, and was there admitted to practice. He then went before the appellate court in Sacramento, and on motion was admitted to practice in California. The first that was known of Wells' success was when he returned to Huntington Beach and announced that he was an attorney.

Begins Action

The Orange County Bar Association, of which E. E. Keech, who defended Wells in his trials in 1899, was president, and J. C. Burke was secretary, took immediate action in an effort to set aside the order admitting Wells to practice in this state. On the ground that Wells was not of fit character and on the ground that he had not given the appellate court full information as to himself, Wells was made to fight to retain his certificate.

In the appellate court, the Orange county bar was loser in its efforts to get Wells' right to practice in California set aside. However, the case has been taken to the supreme court, where it is set down for October 17. Action to get Wells disbarred in Nevada was started by the bar association here.

It is in connection with the approaching hearing in the California supreme court that Wells filed a number of papers yesterday.

First, he filed a notice of motion to have the case dismissed on the ground that the decision of the Court of Appeal is conclusive and final.

He filed a notice of motion to have the petition stricken from the files on the ground that a review of the proceedings of the court of appeal in Nevada was started by the bar association here.

CHANCELLOR IN SECRET SESSION FACES CRITICS

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg today met with the budget committee of the Reichstag in a secret session that will have a most important bearing on the future conduct of the war.

The Chancellor faced members who had criticized him for his alleged failure to wage energetic war on England and also the men who still advocated the resumption of submarine.

These, supported by renewed outbursts of editorial opinion and by attacks on American neutrality appearing in yesterday's papers, pressed the Chancellor for more explicit pledges than were contained in his Reichstag speech of Thursday.

On the outcome of this conference will depend whether Von Bethmann-Hollweg's opponents will continue to wage open war on him when the Reichstag reconvenes next week.

The Chancellor's supporters were confident that in the frank talk in private with the Reichstag commission today he would silence the attacks of a majority of his critics.

WIRES LAUD LE DUC FOR STANDING BY WIFE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Joseph C. LeDuc of Chicago, wounded in the triple shooting at a hotel here Wednesday when Mrs. Harry Belker killed J. C. Cravath and herself, was reported as improved.

Joseph C. LeDuc, the woman's husband, said he had received many telegrams commending him for the stand he had taken in upholding the honor of his wife.

SAY LORD'S PRAYER SHOULD BE SHORTENED

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Prominent clergymen and laymen of the Protestant Episcopal church were gathered here today for the opening tomorrow of the church's triennial convention, which will continue through the month.

A sub-committee of the Commission on Revising the Book of Common Prayer will recommend the omission from the Lord's Prayer of the words, "For Thine is the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory Forever, Amen."

In requesting the omission the sub-committee will say the words substitute a part of the Doxology added by early translators and that they are not in the original text of the Holy Scriptures.

The omission, if adopted, will make the Episcopal version of the prayer identical with the Roman Catholic. It is expected that opposition may develop.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The Teutonic forces have severely defeated the Rumanians in Transylvania, driving them from the city of Hermannstadt, today's official statement says. The Rumanians are in full retreat.

Before the battle began German detachments seized the famous Red Tower pass through which the Rumanians had entered Transylvania to attack Hermannstadt. This avenue of retreat cut off the defeated Rumanians fled to the mountains.

GRAND HEADQUARTERS OF THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 30.—In the first thirteen weeks of the Somme offensive the French and British captured more ground than was taken by the Germans in their more than six months battering at Verdun. Included in the allied gains are forty-five villages, 62,000 prisoners, 285 cannon and 1000 machine guns.

A survey today of the results of the great allied drive that was halted temporarily yesterday by a downpour of rain shows that the allies reconquered twenty-nine square miles, exceeding by fifteen kilometers the territory it took the Germans more than half a year to conquer at Verdun.

Everywhere from the Ancre river to a point near Chaulnes German first, second and third line trenches are completely in the hands of the allies. The whole of this week the allies were rushing through hastily constructed German lines for great gains when bad weather halted the operations.

CLUNE FEATURES LILLIAN GISH MONDAY

In "Diane of the Follies," new Tri-angel-Fine Arts feature to be seen at Clune's Theatre Monday and Tuesday, the story concerns principally Diane, a chorus girl, and Phillips Christy, a millionaire aristocrat, a man of delightful theories, one of which is that environment is the sum and substance of life. He is writing a book pronouncing this theory, which his ambitious sister urges him to finish. His chum, Don Livingston, coaxes him to join a theatre party. At a supper after the performance he meets Diane, the gayest of the girls of the Follies. Phillips Christy falls captive. He tells his sister he will lift Diane of the Follies to their level.

Diane Gets Tired

After a few brief years of married life Diane wearies of the pose of living on the heights. Her husband, engrossed with his studies, does not realize this. She becomes dizzy upon the elevation; she pines for her own people of the theatre. Her husband's quiet dignity and even her child's exquisite charm fail to interest her. Hungry for applause, Diane invites some of her former chums to visit her, to parade before them her wealth and position.

Poor Phillips Christy realizes that his theory has proved false—his wife, after the most careful training toward the uplift, has sought her level in the chorus and filled his house with cigarette-smoking, cocktail-drinking women of the theatre. Resentful at her husband's attitude regarding her friends, and his intolerance of them, Diane determines to leave and seek happiness in the freedom of her early environment. She deserts her husband and child and is installed as the star of the Follies. Later, in the midst of her triumph a message comes to her from her husband requesting her presence at the sick bed of their child. Before she arrives little Bijou, the child, has passed away.

Remain Separated

After the sad rites over the little child are performed, Christy, never forgetting his breeding, asks Diane if she desires to remain in this home under the protection of his name. She answers him truthfully from the depths of her soul:

"I am going back to my own life, to the people who understand me. You and I walk different paths and talk different languages. Our paths need never cross, and we have nothing to say to each other. The one interest that bound us together, our little girl, is no more. Neither of us has anything to forgive, nor to remember. I wish you success and happiness. I am going now to seek them for myself."

The husband and wife separate, and each knows the separation is as final as if the world had ceased being.

From all appearances Joe Boquel, the daring aviator, is to be a permanent fixture at Seal Beach. The management announces that his services have been secured for another week. The coolness in which Boquel makes his flights and indulges in his various "death drop" and other antics is amazing to the average bystander. His favorite stunt is to rise to an elevation of five thousand feet and then dive, roll and corkerscrew down while he throws out skyrockets from both sides.

NEW STATE LAW MAY REGULATE TRUCK LOADS

Supervisor Schumacher and Trustee McPhee Are On Legislative Committee

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—The increasing number of freight and passenger-carrying motor vehicles on Southern California highways and the tendency to overload them, to the detriment of the costly concrete roads, may be dealt with in a new state law. The preservation of these highways, constructed at great expense under the workings of a general law applicable to all the counties of the state, was discussed by the supervisors of seven southern counties and representatives from civic bodies, at a meeting held in Los Angeles yesterday.

Supervisor Hinshaw of Los Angeles, presided, with Karl Carlton, a supervisor of Riverside county, secretary. County Counsel Hill was present in the capacity of legal adviser, and, while the meeting was called to discuss the weight of loads to be carried by motor trucks and other freight-carrying motor vehicles, it branched off to the jitney-bus question.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Advertisement.

SEAL BEACH CHURCH IS IN NEW DISTRICT

But One Community of Orange County Under Rev. Inwood's Jurisdiction

Embracing a stretch of beach 400 miles long and extending from Seal Beach north to beyond Santa Barbara, the boundaries of the new district created at the recent conference of the Methodist churches of Southern California and designated as the Long Beach District because of its expanse of strand, were definitely agreed upon in Los Angeles Friday at the final session of the district superintendents of the conference.

The Long Beach District includes Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Ventura counties, and portions of Los Angeles, Orange and Monterey counties. The only church in Orange county that is in Rev. E. J. Inwood's district is Seal Beach. Some of the cities in the new district, of which Dr. E. J. Inwood is superintendent, are Long Beach, Seal Beach, Redondo, San Pedro, Wilmington, Whittier, Van Nuys, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Burbank, San Fernando, San Luis Obispo, Soledad, Gonzales and Huntington Park. There are fifty-eight churches in the district.

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN FAILS TO BACK LLOYD GEORGE'S WAR STAND

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Manchester Guardian, a strong liberal organ, today withheld approval of Lloyd George's statement to the United Press that the war must be carried to a "knockout."

ROME, Sept. 30.—The proper reply to Germany in view of Hitler's speech, was the Giornale d'Italia's characterization today of Lloyd George's statement to the United Press that England is determined to carry the war to a "knockout."

All Italian newspapers joined with officials in enthusiastic approval of the British war secretary's declarations.

JOHN D. IS WORLD'S FIRST BILLIONAIRE

New Standard Oil Raise Puts Modern Croesus In Highest Finance Rank

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—John D. Rockefeller has become the world's first billionaire.

When the supreme court of the United States, May 15, 1911, ordered the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to dissolve, the stock of that corporation, which included thirty-three other companies, sold at $675. Thursday Standard Oil of New Jersey, separated from all its subsidiaries for four years by that court decree, sold at $567 a share. Taken together with one share each of the thirty-three companies from which it was separated, a collection of shares representing one share of the old Standard Oil of New Jersey was rated at curb prices at $2914.

Rockefeller's S. O. stock alone without holdings in railroad and bank shares and in national, state and municipal bonds, including $10,000,000 of the 1915 Anglo-French loan, stands him in $498,864,036.44 and in addition to this he is understood to own a large part of the stock of the United States Steel Corporation. Financial authorities have no hesitation in saying that Standard Oil's latest rise has put him easily into the billionaire class.

DEL MAR'S OPERATIC MASQUE IS SCHEDULED FOR OPENING TONIGHT

DEL MAR, Cal., Sept. 30.—Just completed by the citizens of Del Mar, the big new Stratford open-air theater will be christened this evening with the dramatic operatic masque and pageant of interpretative dancing, "The Spirit of Love," staged under the direction of Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith. That the opening will be a success from the attendance point of view is indicated by the reservations received by the committee of townsmen in charge of the affair.

CANCEL CHARTER VOTE IN L. A., PLAN AFOOT

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Believing that proposed charter amendment No. 1 contains a "joker" which might prove an obstacle in the way for the formation of a consolidated city and county government, certain city officials inaugurated a movement looking toward the canceling of the proposed charter amendment election to be held October 24.

It is contended that the proposed amendment if approved by the people will open the way for the absorption of all city functions by the County of Los Angeles, thus providing an entering wedge for the formation of a consolidated county and city government, instead of a consolidated city and county government.

FORREST TELLS VISIT TO HUGE AERO SCHOOL OF BRITAIN

It Takes 8 Weeks For Young Britons to Learn Fighting Germans In Air

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BRITISH CENTRAL FLYING SCHOOL, Sept. 5.—(By mail.)—Nestled down amid barren creases of land on the edge of a great plain, was discovered today the British eagle's aerie.

By courtesy of the British Foreign Office, the United Press correspondent was able to spend the day among a massive "nest" of buildings where young eaglets learn to combat the double eagle of Germany. It takes about eight weeks for one of these young Britons to develop from an unsteady yellow fuzzy creature into a defiant grey bird of prey. Usually two months' tuition in and around these flying-school buildings sends a young nying bird direct to the firing line, in France, where his still growing wings are put to the actual test of war.

Hangars Loom Up

A group of large hangars surrounding a concrete fort-like building—all constructed since the beginning of the war—loomed up suddenly over a hill as an international party of journalists motored on to the plain. The scene might have come out of the movies from Arizona or New Mexico. The buildings might have been one of those newly constructed movie towns. America's infantile flying service could learn a lot at this British flying college. Much of the equipment which made the British "nest" came from the United States but the knowledge—the more important part—came from Northern France. "Professors" of flying, who summon their classes at fixed hours of the day, did not learn from books. They dragged their knowledge from the school of actual experience since August, 1914.

U. S. Goods Used

A Providence, R. I., firm could furnish any American eagle "nest" with big lathes such as were seen today in one of the big buildings where air students are taught some of the technical points of learning to fly. There were aeroplane engines, blocked up for demonstrations, which came to England from a well-known engine factory in Connecticut. Another building housed sewing machines for stitching fabric for aeroplane wings. These sewers bore a name known in every American household. Nest little guns, peering over blunt noses of fast monoplanes, spat their first test bullet on American soil. Somewhere else in the camp, the wireless was buzzing away. The slow dots and dashes were distinctly heard from a double headpiece which the correspondent adjusted to his ears.

"What are they saying?" was asked.

"That's the German wireless at Nauen sending its daily wheeze to Saville, L. I., and elsewhere," replied a student wireless operator.

There are other American things in the "eagle's nest."

When young eagles soar to great heights and aim their dummy practice bombs at slowly moving objects on the ground these objects are often bug-like harvesting machines reaping yellow wheat in fields which skirt the edge of the plain. The harvesters are never bombed but they make excellent "aiming" and represent what an enemy gun.

BERNHARDT LEAVES TODAY FOR AMERICA

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, "Sarah the Eternal," starts for New York today for a tour of the United States and Canada in an extensive repertoire.

Three score and ten plus two, a mother, grandmother and great grandmother, and with but one leg, the Divine Sarah declares she is younger than in twenty years. She is so young that she will not call her coming tour a farewell to America. Her last "farewell" was made several years ago when folks thought her acting days were nearly over. Since she has suffered a leg amputation, recovered speedily and has starred in several film productions of her most famous plays.

The opening performance will be in Montreal October 9. After a short tour in Eastern Canada she will go to the Knickerbocker Theater in New York. Her complete repertoire follows: "From the Theater to the Field of Honor," a one-act play.

"Hecube," a one-act play by Maurice Bernhardt and Rene Chavance.

"The Burnt Offering," a one-act play by Mme. Bernhardt.

"The Interrupted Dinner," a one-act play by Paul Bernart.

The last act of "Camille."

The last act of "L'Aiglon."

The last act of "Adrienne Lecouvreur."

SCENE in "Diana," which will be shown at the Princess Theater Sunday and Monday, October 1 and 2.

PRINCESS OFFER IS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

The Princess has an exceptional program for Sunday and Monday when a double bill is to be presented. Beatrice Michelena and House Peters will be featured in Salomy Jane and a new actress, art model, will appear in Diana, the Huntress.

On Monday afternoon there is to be a special after-school matinee for high school pupils so that they may view what the management believes is a masterpiece of artistic conception—Diana. A half price has also been arranged for their convenience.

Salomy Jane is a dramatization by Paul Armstrong of the famous Bret Harte novel, "Salomy Jane's Kiss." The story is cast in the rehabilitated days of '49. The plot centers around the fortunes of Salomy Jane Clay and the man who finds in her impulsive love for him the strength with which to escape the sternly just vigilantes.

The Story

The scenario opens with the arrival in Hangtown of Madison Clay and his daughter, Salomy Jane, who have emigrated from Kentucky. The young men and bachelors in camp fall in love with the winsome Salomy on the spot. Her preference at first is for Rufe. But shortly after another "man" arrives at Hangtown, who saves Salomy from insults at the hands of another.

The strange man continues in more or less mysterious lights and complicates the plot until he becomes the true lover and hero of Salomy.

POISONOUS SPIDERS KILL HUNDREDS YEARLY

Deadly Tarantula Scourge of Tropical Countries

"The Tarantula," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature to be shown at the Temple Theater on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is well named. The title role of the story is played by one of the large spiders which are so feared in tropical countries.

The disease tarantism has been attributed to this species of the spider although no authentic proof of this fact has ever been secured. Unlike most of his kind, the tarantula weaves no web in which to ensnare his prey, but seeks it like other larger animals. His home is a hole burrowed in the ground with a silky lining in order to protect himself from being hemmed in by pieces of falling earth.

These spiders, which are about the size of a walnut, are the scourge of the countries in which they are found and their bites have been fatal in a great many instances. The poison glands are concealed in the lower region of the head from which the fangs protrude.

It is said that the only cure for the bite of a tarantula is dancing or some similar violent exercise, which will exhaust the victim and cause them to perspire. In this way the poison leaves the system and their chances of recovery increase accordingly.

BLANCHE SWEET TALKS OF GHOSTS AND SPOOKS

"I have been in many pictures since I have been before the camera," remarked Blanche Sweet, while resting between scenes of "Public Opinion," a Paramount release which will be the attraction at the West End Theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, "but this idea of having ghosts haunt one all the time has me all fussed up. Of course I know it is no one but Edythe Chapman, but it is all so mysterious that I am beginning to start every time I see her."

Continuing, the Lasky star said: "When I was a little girl, I had a mad devotion for ghost stories, and any tale that had a clanking chain, a low moan, or a white shroud in it, I would read again and again. However, I have had several spooky parts since I have been with the Lasky Company. You will remember that in 'Secret Sin' I played twin sisters, and I nearly went into hysterics when I sat in the theatre and saw myself talking to myself on the screen. In 'The Case of Becky' I had a dual personality. But this spirit coming in from time to time in 'Public Opinion,' has really got me all upset and I go home at night and look for ghosts behind every door, and I actually feel disappointed if I drop off to sleep without having some noise make my hair stand on end."

THE SUMMER GIRL AT TEMPLE TODAY, SUNDAY

The story of "The Summer Girl" depicts a certain Mary Anderson, daughter of wealthy parents, while in the country, more out of mischief than anything else, she hides her real identity behind the ragged dress she is wearing when she meets Bruce Haldeman, a poor artist, and introduces her laundress to him as her mother. Bruce comes to the laundress' cottage every morning to paint Mary's picture. Mary's mother, very ambitious for her daughter, learns of her escapade and, highly indignant, brings her back to the city.

He Learns Identity

Bruce learns Mary's real identity from the laundress and realizing the great social gulf between them, is heartbroken. Mary enlists the services of her father and provokes him into taking her one night to Bruce's studio, where she sees his model and misconstrues the meaning of her presence there.

Bruce is about to destroy her portrait but his model, who secretly loves him, intervenes, saves it, sends it to the Art Institute under Bruce's name, and enters it in the prize competition, and lastly goes to Mary's father and explains all to him.

The model later telephones in that Bruce has won the Grand Prize at the Art Exhibit, which makes him a rich man. Mr. Anderson then warns Bruce to be careful in his decision, now that he has achieved fame and fortune, but Bruce in answer clasps Mary to him, as Mr. Anderson confesses to his wife that the tale of poverty was only a ruse to test his manhood.

LEADERSHIP FOR BOYS

Organizations for boys are one of the typical ideas of the times. A great army of youngsters will gather this fall in the Boy Scouts, Woodcraft League, Knights of King Arthur and so on. The Boy Scouts of America alone include 200,000 members. The time when the boy used to sit down under the evening lamp and read the Rollo books has gone by. To keep him out of the leading hang-outs, he has been turned into a young clubman.

But it's one thing to get the boys into some of the many useful societies, and it's quite another to have it work out some positive benefit. Leaders of the Boy Scout movement report great difficulty in securing scoutmasters. To fill this lack they are starting at Boston this fall a school for scout leadership, and receiving applications for membership from all over the country.

As things now are, many of these boy organizations run in a haphazard fashion. Very few men have the gift for work with boys. Young America is a tough problem to handle. He thinks quick. He has a very keen sense of humor. He feels a desire to utter his witticisms at the most inopportune times. His little spirit boils over with fun, and he wants to make a game of all drill or class work.

The average man has to think very actively to subdue these resourceful minds and squirming muscles. It takes an alert brain, an ingenious imagination, a tolerant spirit, and a firm will.

There is great need for organizations to keep the boys off the streets and to provide outlet for their superfluous energy. A man who has a gift for this kind of leadership can do untold good.

STUDYING COSTS

The Old Fashioned home was a great student of detail. Thereby it lived amply and saved money. It had meats, fruits, and vegetables in a way that would seem lavish now. This was not merely because prices were lower. People knew what things ought to cost and they bought shrewdly.

As the country has increased in wealth, many families have gotten away from this thoughtful study of domestic economy. Purchases are made largely by telephone. A great many people have little idea of what daily necessities ought to cost.

As prices have advanced, people are inclined to revert to the careful old fashioned practices of intelligent buying. It is here that the newspaper and its advertising columns become the greatest single means for evading high living costs.

The newspaper contains in each issue a directory of merchants' ambitions and progressive enough to advertise. Just patronizing those merchants is a matter of domestic economy, even if they did not tell much in detail about their goods.

It is becoming better realized, however, that an advertisement should be more than a mere announcement. Merchants are making it a means of educating the public. They give little talks on qualities, values, and fabrics. The woman who reads the newspaper advertisements thoughtfully can render more efficient service to her family. She gets an intelligent idea of prices and many useful facts about brands of goods, processes of manufacture, and the supply of food products.

In addition she is constantly learning of special opportunities by which supplies can be purchased at less than standard prices.

Through the reading of newspaper advertisements the high cost of living is often materially reduced.

WILSON TALKED WELL, BUT HE VETOED SPECIAL INTERESTS. CONSERVATION LOSES—PINCHOT

Milford, Pa., Sept. 20.
Mr. J. P. Baumgartner,
Editor Register,
Santa Ana, Cal.

The conservation of natural resources has become one of the largest issues of our time. In the campaign of 1912, it formed one of the chief planks in the Democratic platform, and was often endorsed in Mr. Wilson's speeches. His inaugural address committed him fully to support it.

For these reasons it is important to know what the Wilson administration has done. As one man deeply interested in conservation and familiar with the record, I am writing to lay it briefly before you.

When he took office, Mr. Wilson ceased to say much on conservation, preferring to let the members of his cabinet speak for him. After his inauguration, the friends of conservation, regardless of partisanship, offered him their help in putting the conservation policies through. The opportunity invited action. The fight to save Alaska from the Guggenheims had created a living body of public opinion which lacked only official leadership to save what resources still remained in public hands. It seemed as if that President Wilson would lead.

Started Good

At the outset the work of the Wilson administration in conservation was good. Congress passed, and Mr. Wilson signed, the Alaska Railroad bill and the bill which assured government control of coal lands in Alaska. These measures were excellent, and President Wilson deserves praise for their enactment. So he does for his veto of a bill to give away National Forest lands.

Unfortunately these creditable instances form but little of the record. Politics came into control. Thus a bill seeking to turn the natural resources of Alaska over to a political commission was repeatedly recommended by the administration through the mouth of the secretary of the Interior. If passed it would have thrown Alaska into the hands of the special interests and established a policy almost certain to destroy the national control of natural resources everywhere else as well. This measure we were fortunately able to stop.

Politics Enters

When Wilson became president, the Reclamation Service, in its great work of irrigating the arid lands of the West, was wholly free from politics. By the mouth of his secretary of the Interior, Wilson advocated, and later signed, a bill which leaves the choice of lands to be reclaimed to a committee of Congress, and so makes politics dominate the service.

Director Newell was the man who created the Reclamation Service. He made and kept it one of the most efficient bureaus under the government. The secretary of the Interior forced him out, and replaced him by a commission in which politicians control.

Newlands Bill

The Newlands bill is a conservation measure which proposes to develop all the resources of our inland waterways—water power, navigation, irrigation, and domestic supply—for the public benefit. Although Wilson strongly endorsed it during his campaign, as president he let it drop, and instead has signed two waterway bills of the old pork-barrel type, which are everything the Newlands bill is not.

Water power is the most valuable resource still in public hands. There is undeveloped water power in our navigable streams equal to twice the power of every kind now used in the United States. It is a huge prize. For years the water-power interests have been fighting to seize it, and the spendence with Congressman Kettner in reference to matters that I desired attended to at Washington while he has been congressman. He has been very prompt, courteous and very efficient in all matters that he has attended to for me. Politically, however, his policies and theories of government have not always appealed to me. For instance, we do not agree as to tariff legislation or on the liquor traffic. Mr. Kettner, as I understand it, is already recorded as having voted for a reduction in the tariff on citrus fruits and against the national dry cause. The solution of both of these great questions are absolutely essential for California's welfare.

Selecting the Man

"California dry and national prohibition of the liquor traffic are issues greater than any man. It is not a question whether any given political party or man wins, but the question is, 'Who is the dry man that can be elected?' Both Mr. Edwards and Mr. Harbison are dry. Both would support national prohibition. As a result of the record places Mr. Kettner against these men on this question.

Of these two men, which stands the best show of defeating Mr. Kettner? I believe Mr. Harbison to be that man, not because he is the Republican candidate merely, but because of the fact that as I am reliably informed, for something like sixteen or seventeen years, immediately last past, and at a time too when there was nothing for him to gain, politically, financially or otherwise, except commendation as to his own conscience, he has persistently and consistently fought the heli traffic through his paper.

Edwards Can't Win

"If, therefore, I have sized up the situation correctly, Mr. Edwards has absolutely no show of winning. Under these conditions, what shall be done?

conservationists to save it for the people.

Adamson Bill
A water-power measure, the Adamson bill, came before the House in 1914. It favored monopoly, and gave the special interests, for nothing, the public water power on navigable streams. Nevertheless Wilson endorsed it.

On its way through the House, the bad parts of the Adamson bill were stricken out, and the public rights were secured. Thereupon Wilson reversed his previous stand, and endorsed the amended bill.

Shelved Good Bill
This good bill then went to the Senate, where it was shelved, and the indefensible Shields bill was reported in its place. The Shields bill gives away the public water powers forever and for nothing. Both Roosevelt and Taft vetoed bills drawn on the same principle. Yet, by another reversal, the Wilson administration got behind it, and when a widely circulated public appeal was made to the president for his help to defeat it, he refused.

As to water power on the public lands, there is but one reversal instead of two. Wilson, first, by the mouth of a member of his cabinet, endorsed the Ferris bill, which was mainly good. It was replaced in the Senate by the Myers bill, which is thoroughly bad. Among other things this bill actually throws the Grand Canyon, the greatest natural wonder of America, wide open to individual appropriation. Nevertheless, Wilson reversed himself in order to give it in the same way his endorsement.

With Special Interests
Both as to water powers on navigable streams and on public lands, the last reversals leave the administration standing with the special interests against the people.

The Phelan oil land measure, would hand over to private individuals who have no legal rights the valuable oil lands set aside as reserves for the navy. The Navy Department has made public announcement that the mere threat of the Phelan bill's passage has caused it "to seriously consider the advisability of abandoning" the policy of constructing oil burning ships.

Only oil burning ships can develop and maintain the high speed required in modern war, and without them no navy can be even second class. The secretary of the Interior actively supported this surrender of National safety to private greed. The secretary of the Navy and the attorney general opposed it. Wilson remained neutral and did nothing.

Much at Stake
Because Wilson refused to take sides, or took the wrong side, the question whether the people or the interests shall win or lose in the Shields and Myers water power bills and the Phelan oil bill is still unsettled. These bills are still before Congress, and will pass or fail at the coming session.

The public water powers and the efficiency of the navy are at stake. There can be no compromise between the men who would grab the public resources for private profit, and those who would conserve them for the use of all the people. Either the interests will get them or the people will keep them. There is no middle ground.

To sum up, as in many other matters the promise made was not performed. Instead of progress in conserving our resources, the last two years have been a bitter and often a losing fight to hold what we had. Wilson, talked well, began to act well, and then, yielding to the political pressure of the special interests, went back on conservation.

GERMAN BARON PLANS TO REJOIN COLORS

Wounded Early In War, Officer Now In L. A. Anxious To Get to Front

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—After a year spent peacefully in Beverly Hills, a year in direct contrast to the first of the war when they were on the other side of the world, Baron and his three children will leave early in the week for New York. Baron von Kleydort, who is a great singer, as well as an officer of the German army, goes to sing a series of baritone roles for the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company during the coming season.

During the first strenuous weeks when the German army was fighting its way Paris-ward Baron von Kleydort was severely wounded. It was necessary for him to be honorably retired from service. The Baroness was in Paris with her children when war was declared, and could not return to their Berlin home, so came to America, the home of her girlhood, for Baroness von Kleydort was Miss Paula Busch of Chicago, a daughter of Ansel Busch. Though Baron von Kleydort did not know his family was in this country he too came here after his severe illness, and it was several months before husband and wife discovered each other on the same neutral soil.

Now that he is thoroughly recovered, the German army officer chafes at being away from his regiment, but finds it impossible to return to the Fatherland. He wired for passage on the Bremen, and was refused, but is now discouraged, for he feels that when he is in New York he may be able to secure some transportation across if his country continues to invent means of transportation.

AVALANCHE OF VOTES TODAY SWAMPS CONTEST DEPARTMENT

In the Rush of Counting If Any Error Occurred It Will Be Corrected Later—Ten Contestants Show Gains.

Hayes Fleming Goes Into the Roll of Honor—Miss Berdella Stark Goes Up One Position—Miss Lila Crane Makes Big Gain.

CONTEST NEWS IN BRIEF

Over a million votes were turned in up to 11 o'clock today.
Miss Hayes Fleming goes into the Roll of Honor column, taking ninth position.
Miss Berdella Stark makes gain of more than a quarter million votes, taking sixth position.
Contestants are urged to read special announcement in next Monday's paper.

Miss Berdella Stark, of Santa Ana, who turned in over a quarter million votes today and is now among the leaders.

Today's subscriptions turned in up to 11 o'clock broke all previous records up to this stage of the contest. The fact is, the contest manager was kept so busy waiting on contestants that it was impossible for him to find time to write much about the contest.

One thing is evident and that is that nearly every contestant is working hard while the big votes are on and 6 o'clock this evening is pretty certain to bring some surprises.

Miss Ella Davis is in the field again after a period of enforced inactivity due to a mishap in which she suffered a severely sprained ankle, and while her score is unchanged today, she will doubtless be heard from on Monday.

Now, contestants remember that subscriptions must be in the office by 6 o'clock this evening in order to compete for the auxiliary prizes—the $75.00 diamond ring and the $35.00 suits. In fairness to all we must adhere strictly to the hour set for closing, except that subscriptions of out-of-town contestants mailed at their postoffice previous to 6 o'clock will be counted.

Watch Monday's Paper
Every contestant is urged to read carefully the Contest Editor's story in Monday's paper. There will be something doing again next week and it is important that every contestant know about it. No one will know the nature of the big news for contestants until it appears in Monday's paper.

Not only will the announcement in Monday's paper be of interest to the leaders in the contest but to all those in the lower positions.

WIFE'S NOVEL CITED AS BASIS FOR SUIT

Gotham Millionaire Seeks to Annul Marriage to His 19-Year-Old Bride

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Seeking to annul his marriage to his 19-year-old wife, Herman T. Asche, millionaire importer of Riverside drive, cites a document said to have been written by the bride and called her novelette confession. In it, according to documents filed with the supreme court, she revealed that her marriage to Asche was part of a plot to get his money so she might return to the young artist she really loved. According to the papers, Mrs. Asche, daughter of Andrew O'Connor, famous Irish-American sculptor, was secretly married when 18 to a young man of Bushnellville, N. Y., and lived with him two days. This marriage was annulled, although Asche says he knew nothing of it at the time he was courted by her. Asche's father is a former postmaster general of Norway, and his brother Harold is now chief justice of Norway.

With Malice Toward None
By Henry James

No Apology Necessary
A man who until recently was a bachelor, and went to boast of his desirable freedom, is now engaged in telling his friends why he married; which is unnecessary, since they all know. He married because he met a woman who seemed to him so charming that he "got into himself," as the saying is. That is, he realized what a chump he had been.

Whatever may be the bachelor's view of the matter, the plain truth is that he is an undesirable social and economic equation. He sidesteps many of the responsibilities of life. He contributes to the world nothing but the boom of his presence, which may be considerably less valuable than he supposes. He is the third element in the everlasting triangle. He spoils a girl's chances by mooning around while he has no intention of marrying her.

When the bachelor finally is captured he is as a brand snatched from the burning. His only apology should be for having so long remained obdurate.

Bride and Cook
A woman lawyer recently became a bride, and says that while she knows how to cook, she intends to stick to the law and leave the cooking done.

She has the advantage over many brides that if the party of the other part gets gay she understands how to file a demurrer and to argue the case.

Roads East and West
Pennsylvanians complain because they have to pay as they go, the available highways being toll roads. It is peculiar that the residents of a state in some respects fairly enlightened should submit to this imposition. If the toll roads were kept in repair it would be different, but nobody ever seems to think of repairing them. The sole duty of the guardian of the gate is to hold up motorists.

Nothing of the sort would be tolerated in the West. Here they have good roads, and the people own 'em. The only holdup is worked by the casual bandit, and he is no more disagreeable to come into contact with than a toll gatherer is.

High Pay for Nothing
An aspirant for senatorship has filed an expense account of $516.15. And all he got out of it was the other fellow's dust.

Public Always Suspicious
When a young woman reports an attempt to kidnap her, of course she has the popular sympathy. This wanes to a perceptible degree when the fact that she is a film actress leaks out.

This may do her a wrong at that.

Lip Reading
Deaf mutes learn to read the lips. By gazing at the face of a speaker they are aware of his words as though these were audible to them. In consequence deaf mutes have received many a shock at movie shows, the reason wholly imperceptible to persons having all the senses.

Some actors, and it may be said with regret some actresses, when the nature of the piece requires them to speak before the camera do not follow the text of the play. They do not use language always conforming to the emotions they are registering. That which they do use may be wholly unfit for publication, and they do not realize that they are publishing it.

Of course the proportion of deaf mutes is small, and may be entirely lacking. Still decency for the sake of being decent has been known to make a reasonably strong appeal.

Over Their Pile
Bail to the amount of $935,000 was asked from a mess of I. W. W.'s caught somewhere in Pennsylvania. It was not forthcoming.

Had the prisoners been able to raise a tenth of this sum they never would have had an impulse to join that gang.

Best Sellers Go Up
The price of white paper is so high that "best sellers" usually available at $1.10 are to cost $1.25.

Sadder still, the housewife will have to pay more for the white paper with which she covers the pantry shelves. There's a real wallop at our happy homes.

Retreating
Early in the war the Grand Duke Nicholas won fame by a masterly retreat.

Now there has been so much practice that the science of retreating is quite widely understood, and no individual can claim the stellar role.

About thirty members of the American Woman's Republic from Fullerton, Santa Ana and Orange, gathered at Fullerton Park yesterday, the Fullerton members being hostesses for the occasion.

JUNIOR COLLEGE MET

Efficient Officers Elected and Many Attractive Things Are Planned

The Junior College this year is made up of a live group of bright young people, who are going to make themselves felt in school activities this year.

On Thursday last during the assembly period, the college members gathered and elected the following officers: President, Bernard Packard, an active member in last year's senior class; vice president, Miss Dorothy Mead, a second-year Junior College girl; secretary, Miss Laura Davis; treasurer, George Parker.

The president will appoint a committee to act with a member of the faculty, in drawing up a constitution for the college. It was voted that in the future the college would take charge at one of the high school assembly meetings and later a get-together picnic will be planned. There are fifty-two members of the Junior College.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

The Belle Rogers Union will meet in the Armory parlors next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members and friends are invited to be present. It will be an important meeting and it is necessary to have a full attendance.

Rev. F. G. Watson, pastor of the Richmond Avenue M. E. Church, will speak upon a vital topic: "What Will California Dry Mean to the Women of the State?"

Those who have heard Rev. Watson know that he speaks in no uncertain manner upon the live issues of the day and it is a help and inspiration to hear him. It would add to the general interest if the women would come with some word, or clipping or comment upon the subject of paramount importance from the individual viewpoint. The object of the meetings should be personal improvement and the general good.

For two months the meetings have largely been given over to the organization and drilling of Young Campaigners, but hereafter the regular meetings will be held on the first and third Tuesday afternoons of each month. The present meeting place is Armory parlors.

Next Tuesday a committee from the Santa Ana Union will be present to arrange for the presentation of Mrs. Young's cantata.

Womanly Grace AND Physical Charm

Much has been written on the subject and much has been spoken, but very little is true. Every manufacturer of corsets feels that his particular make of corset will assure both grace and charm to the wearer; and as a selling argument this sort of talk seems to convince.

The Woman Who Cares

But it does not convince the woman who knows—the woman who really cares about her womanly grace and her physical charm. She knows that it is only the custom made corset—the corset made to bring out and correct her individual figure, that accomplishes what a woman most eagerly cares for.

E. E. Knight of Yorba Linda exhibited to friends in Santa Ana samples of the fruit of the Petajalla cactus, the highest priced fruit in Guatemala. Knight was for thirty years a resident of Latin-American countries and upon coming here brought with him numerous tropical fruits. He has about twenty of the Petajalla cactus plants growing on his ranch near Yorba Linda. The avocados he imported from Guatemala have a reputation as being the best-flavored and most rare of any now grown in California.

TELLS TERRIFIC STRUGGLE WITH WOUNDED DEER DURING HUNT

Tustin Man Escapes Death As Animal He Shot Turns And Gives Battle

A story of a terrific battle in the Santa Rosa mountains between a hunter and a wounded deer and of suffering and privation endured when the hunter lost his way is contained in a letter written by A. V. Wilson at Murietta, Cal., and reaching Santa Ana today. The man who battled the wounded deer and who nearly lost his life as a result of the hardships he encountered was William Stafford of Tustin. Wilson and Earl Horton, Stafford's brother-in-law, found Stafford in his temporary mountain camp. Stafford's tongue was parched and swollen from lack of water and his clothes were in tatters.

Stafford, Horton and Horton's son arrived from Tustin Monday night at Wilson's spring and started Tuesday morning for a hunt on Squaw mountain.

Four hundred yards from camp the party jumped a big buck. None of the hunters got a shot at the deer. In the excitement the three men became separated.

Returning to camp, Horton and his son waited all afternoon for Stafford, but in vain.

Begin Search
On Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock Horton, his son and Wilson started a search. They soon found a trail and followed it till 12 or 1 o'clock when they lost the trail. Within seventy-five feet of a water hole they saw Stafford's track plainly in the sand where he had been going down the canyon in search of water but for some reason had turned back.

The searching party could not find his track leading away from there so they gave up the search for the time being and went to camp. They notified the people of the little neighborhood. It was 4 o'clock when they arrived at camp. Two parties were then sent out.

Wilson and Horton's party started toward San Mateo canyon. They followed in the trail some barefoot tracks of a man, whereupon they turned and went to the camp. There, lying under the fender of his automobile, they found Stafford, apparently dead, his clothing nearly torn from his body and his flesh torn and bleeding. A runner was dispatched to overtake the parties who had started to Murietta, while Stafford was given attention. When given a little water and nourishment he revived sufficiently to tell his story. He said in part:

Tells Story
"I followed that deer through the jungles until about 4:30 o'clock and came upon him in a canyon where the brush was twenty feet high and shot him, but shot him too far back and he made a fight. He ran at me. I shot at him, I don't know how many times, but I did not hit him and it was impossible for me to get away. He knocked me down and stepped all over me. Finally I got in between two big boulders where he could not reach me. He stood there and shook his head for twenty or thirty minutes and then walked away. When I crawled out from between those rocks I found he was dead not twenty feet from me. It was almost dark by that time so I went to work to dress the deer. I was thirsty. When I had him dressed I was so worn out I crawled back between those boulders, more dead than alive. I could not sleep. While lying there about 12 o'clock that night I heard a commotion out where the deer was. I got up and peered out and could just discern two big mountain lions eating on my deer. I had no shells.

Listens to Lions
"There was nothing to do but lay there and listen to those lions growl and fight over my deer until about 3 o'clock in the morning when I was disturbed by a rattle snake which persisted in coming into my den, or at least he did get possession for after he rattled the second or third time I gave up my bed to him and got out of there as quick as I could, regardless of the lions which were so busy pulling and dragging my buck around. They did not notice me, although I passed within fifteen or twenty feet of them. From then until daylight I beat around the brush and rocks encountering many rattlers and falling down many bluffs. At sunrise I thought I was near San Mateo canyon where I had been told there was plenty of water. I crawled for some distance. I don't know how far—it must have been two miles, when I came upon the same place where I had killed the buck and spent a part of the night. It was then about 10 o'clock and I was almost crazy with thirst. I had enough to peek in my den to see if I had left any shells and I will never forget what I beheld. There were two monster rattlers coiled up in my nest. "I got away from there as fast as I could and that was not very far for I had to crawl. I then determined to find water if possible and started down a canyon which led me in sight of a little ranch a mile west of A. V. Wilson's, where Wm. Christow lives. I never saw anything in all my life that looked better to me than that little ranch."

"Now if that is not 'getting the limit, I don't know what is." Stafford was sufficiently recovered on Thursday morning to start for home, says Wilson in his letter.

IN THE JUSTICE COURT

LOS ANGELES MAN BROUGHT TO JAIL ON BIGAMY CHARGE

E. J. Fenley, Ice Man, Found Not Guilty of Selling Short Weight

Milton A. Johnson, a Los Angeles chauffeur, is to have a fine chance to explain how he came to marry Miss Christine Neilson of San Francisco before he got a divorce from a wife who was living.

Johnson was arrested in Los Angeles yesterday, brought to jail here, and released this morning on $1000 bail. His preliminary examination was set for October 24.

It is stated that Johnson had an interlocutory decree from his first wife, who was formerly Miss Anna Bledsoe of Los Angeles, but no final decree when he came to Santa Ana on September 17, 1915, and married the San Francisco girl.

Charge Battery
This morning Frank Johnson pleaded guilty to a charge of battery brought against him by his wife, Nellie Johnson. The trial was set for October 3.

Is Fined $5
Albert Cummings paid a fine of $5 for disturbing the peace. Officer Cook swore to the complaint.

Found Not Guilty

This morning in the Santa Ana township court, E. J. Fenley, charged in a complaint sworn to by County Sealer George McPhee with delivering short weight ice to John F. Richards of Orange, was found not guilty by Justice of the Peace Cox.

The charge was based on complaint made by John F. Richards, of Orange, that Fenley delivered to the latter a piece of ice for which he tore out coupons from Richards' book to represent the delivery of forty pounds, but which in reality weighed only twenty-two pounds, according to a scale used by Sealer McPhee to test the weight of the ice.

Fenley's defense was that on a previous visit to the Richards home he had left more ice than could be accounted for by the coupons remaining in the book then there, and that on the next visit he had torn out enough coupons to represent what ice he then delivered as well as the balance due from the previous delivery.

Fenley and James Seely are partners in the ice business. Both partners stated that upon some matters they depended much on memory in the matter of bookkeeping.

Seely gave his partner a clean bill of health as to being an honest man, and Taylor also testified to his unimpeachable reputation for truth and veracity.

Attorney H. C. Head appeared for the defendant and Deputy District Attorney Eden for the state.

TWO DIVORCES ARE GRANTED BY COURT, GROUND DESERTION

Yesterday two interlocutory decrees of divorce were granted in the superior court, in each case the ground of complaint being desertion.

L. E. Martin secured a decree against Lena M. Martin. The couple married here in 1913. G. H. Scott is What Does Catarrh Mean?

It means inflammation of a mucous membrane somewhere in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, biliary ducts or bowels. It always means stagnant blood—the blood that is full of impurities. Left alone, it extends until it is followed by indigestion, colds, congestion or fever. It weakens the system generally and spreads its operations until systemic catarrh or an acute illness is the result.

Peruna

Is the nation's reliable remedy for this condition. It restores appetite, aids digestion, checks and removes inflammation, and thus enables the membranes, through which we breathe and through which our food is absorbed, to do their work properly. Forty-four years of success, with thousands of testimonials, have established it as the home remedy—Ever-Ready-to-Take. Its record of success holds a promise for you.

FIND LIFE PRESERVER WITH WORD 'BREMEN' STENCILED UPON IT

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 30.—A life preserver marked "Bremen," the name of the German submarine freighter which has been generally expected to arrive at some Atlantic Coast port for the past week or more, was picked up on the ocean side of Cape Elizabeth.

The name "Bremen" was stenciled in black letters two inches high, on both sides of the buoy. On one side of the canvas covering was printed a small crown. An officer of the coast guard cutter service who examined the buoy said that if the preserver had been thrown overboard by some one who thought to play a practical joke, he had done a very good job.

The board will meet again soon when definite action will be taken in regard to the bonds, and State Highway Commissioner N. D. Darlington will speak.

JAPS IN VIOLATION OF U. S. LAW CONTROL FISH TRADE, CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Charges that at least 70 per cent of the fishing industry on the Southern California coast is conducted by Japanese, in contravention to the United States statutes and that federal officials at Washington, D. C., have been so notified, were made by Attorney Earl Rogers. The lawyer's sensational claim was made in connection with the injunction proceedings brought by the Tuna Exchange against the Halfhill Tuna Company, wherein the right of the Nipponese to fish in American waters is questioned.

According to Attorney Rogers, the federal statutes regulating fishing and navigation require all boats of over five tons to secure a registration and a documentation. Examinations, he says, made along the southern coast show that 70 per cent of the boats used have not registered and carry no documents.

BY H. C. HAMILTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Thirty-two of the most daring drivers in the automobile racing game, driving the fastest racing cars on the American continent, were to face the starter this afternoon in the Sheepshead Bay Speedway classic of the year, the 250-mile Astor Cup race.

The men and cars were scheduled to race for $25,000 to go to the first ten to finish. The prizes are: First, $10,000; second, $5000; third, $2500; fourth, $1600; fifth, $1300; sixth, $1200; seventh, $1000; eighth, $900; ninth, $800 and tenth, $700.

The men who faced the starter qualified by hurtling around the Sheepshead head bowl at not less than ninety miles an hour. Most of the trials were held Thursday.

The track was in perfect shape. Workmen had been over every square inch of it, smoothing down the slightest irregularities. Speed bugs looked forward to a smashing of records.

Interest in the drivers centered on Dario Resta, speed king for the year to date; Ralph De Palma, Johnny Aitken, Eddie Rickenbacker and Eddie Pullen. It was to be the crowning event of the season and to the winner was to go the title, "The Speed King."

IDEAL GAS FURNACE

This furnace burns city gas for fuel and is so constructed that the hot gas is compelled to travel a long distance, over heavy sheet iron surfaces, before it escapes. These surfaces extract all of the heat from the gas, so that when the fumes escape to the chimney, the heat has been extracted and the waste pipe is the coolest on the furnace. This is just the reverse of other furnaces, where the smoke pipe is the hottest. The radiated heat is mixed with fresh air and delivered in the house in the usual manner. This heated air is fresh, pure and entirely free from gas fumes and is heated to a temperature that causes it to travel readily. For sale by

Tustin Budget

PROPOSALS UP FOR VOTE ARE SUBJECT FOR A DISCUSSION

Tustin W. C. T. U. Has the Amendments Explained
By Mrs. Anderson

The regular meeting of the Tustin W. C. T. U. was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. C. Crawford.

The subject for consideration was "Temperance Legislation" and the members were delighted to have with them Mrs. J. N. Anderson of Santa Ana to explain to them the different measures upon the ballot for the coming election. She had tabulated the subjects of particular interest to women.

She advised the Union to send for copies of California Laws for Women and Children, leaflet No. 5, from the state librarian at Sacramento.

The Immigration and Housing Committee proposes a law by which communities are to be provided with home teachers to go in and out among homes of immigrants teaching them clean living and management of children. Leaflet No. 5 gives working plans of the home teacher.

Mrs. Anderson then called attention to some of the laws that have been enacted by Congress and some of the measures that are to be voted on this fall. One of the laws which should be helped along is the Federal Child Labor Law. There are two million children up to the ages of 16 in the United States that are working in mills and these are all white children. In the localities of cotton mills in the South negro children are being sent to school and white children are sent to work.

"We are to vote on the widows' pension bill," said she; "the federal farm loan law; military training in schools, whereby in schools where 100 boys will take military training the state will send an army officer to drill them."

Mrs. Anderson favors physical culture rather than military training.

Other subjects of intense interest were national prohibition, national suffrage, prohibition in the District of Columbia; a proposition to prevent brewers and distillers from sending liquor to foreign countries. It is often the case that ships bearing missionaries to the foreign field also carry thousands of dollars worth of liquor. Bonds for state roads were commended by Mrs. Anderson. By means of a map she showed the advantages in California to be gained by these roads. Important measures are those of better handling of the feeble minded, the single tax law; the proposed farm school at Riverside; resolutions against horse racing and betting; provisions for community property rights of husband and wife, putting men and women on the same level.

These subjects were all of the greatest interest to the ladies and were tabulated in such a way as to cover extensive ground. The deepest interest was shown to the last word, and many eager questions were asked.

Devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Ella Brown, prayer following by Mrs. L. A. Cock.

There were interesting reports from registration work.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Anderson for her instructive and comprehensive talk on subjects of deep interest to women voters.

As the shadows of evening began to fall the hostess served delicious chocolate and wafers.

The next meeting will be held October 12 at the home of Mrs. C. A. Miller.

The meeting will be in charge of Mrs. C. E. Utt; subject, "National Prohibition."

EDITORIAL

HE FOUGHT PROHIBITION

The editor of the Seattle Times, Major C. B. Blethen, one of the men who made the fight against prohibition, was asked how prohibition was working and if all his prophecies had come true. He said:

"My paper fought prohibition. We fought it on economic grounds alone. We believed that in a great seaport city with a population of upwards of 330,000 prohibition would be destructive; it would bring on economic disaster. We believed that under our system of licensing saloons we had the liquor traffic about as well controlled as it could be, and we wanted to let it alone, and so we fought as hard as we could fight. But in spite of all we could do against it, prohibition carried and it went into effect January 1.

"We know now that it is a great benefit morally and from an economic standpoint. Its moral benefit has been tremendous. Seattle had 336 saloons, and we had about 1600 arrests a month for crimes and misdemeanors. In January we only had 765 arrests and sixty of those were made January 1, and were the result of 'hang-overs' from the old year. The year previous there were 2600 arrests in the same month. That in itself is enough to convince any man with a conscience that prohibition is necessary. There can be no true economy in anything that is immoral.

"And on top of that great moral result, we have these economic facts: 'Now, instead of suffering greatly financially, Seattle in bank clearings, bank deposits and volume of business, of every kind, excepting the handling of liquor, has vastly increased since the coming of the dry regime. I am not attempting to say that the dry law caused these things. I am merely stating it has happened.

No stores whatever have been vacated as a result of the dry law. Somewhat more than 300 saloons were closed and all but a very few of the locations occupied by entirely new business houses. Naturally the rent which a shoe store, a candy store or a specialty shop can pay in an old saloon location is less than could be afforded by the displaced bar. No other rentals in Seattle were reduced by the disappearance of the saloon." Interviewed by Kansas City Star Representative.

COULD NOT DO HER COOKING

"Mrs. F. E. Hartmeister, Tea, Mo., writes: 'I was affected with kidney trouble for two years. I was so bad this summer I could hardly do my cooking. I got Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me. I feel like a new person.' Too many women neglect symptoms of kidney derangement. When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints and rheumatism. Rowley Drug Co.—Advertisement.

GOING TO IMPROVE FARMS RESERVOIR

Foggy, Damp Mornings Have Caused Many Delays In Bean Threshing

HARPER, Sept. 29.—The Fairview Farms Company is cleaning its reservoir, after which it will re-line it with asphaltum.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt, who have been living here for the past year, have moved back to Newport Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Holt, who have been living on the corner of Seventeenth and Orange avenues, will occupy the Holt ranch.

Mr. Pringle is making extensive improvements on his ranch. It has been reported that H. B. Woodrough, owner of the El Rancho Modelo, has threshed as high as fifteen sacks per acre from some of his land.

Mr. and Mrs. Horne, who have been visiting in the East, have returned and report a very pleasant journey. They made the trip in their car.

About November 1 Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo White and family will leave for Fresno, where they will make their future home. The Whites have been residents of Harper for several years and their many friends regret to see them leave.

Harry Snow has left for San Luis Obispo, where he has accepted a position with the state highway commission. His family will leave for there soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stow's daughter and son-in-law, from Calexico, are visiting them. The Spineless Cactus Company has changed its plans and is now watering the cactus. It finds that the results show a much better grade of cactus than before.

Ed Smithwick has sold his ranch and will move to Santa Ana about November 1. Smithwick has lived here for five years and says he likes it just fine, only he is no longer able to do the work. A man from Santa Ana bought the place and will start a large chicken ranch. Chickens do well here.

A number of friends joined in and gave Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow a farewell surprise party Saturday night. Games and music were enjoyed, after which light refreshments were served. Those present were Misses Sarah Kantz, Theo Snow, Rosalind, Alice King, Messrs. Ed Bennett, Carre Newton, Glen Partlow, George King, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Derby, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. King, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow.

The heavy fog and cloudy weather make it bad for bean threshers. The beans are often so wet that the men work only a little while each day and as rainy as it has been looking the last few days they are in rather a hurry.

Mr. Lawson and family, who have been living near Harper, left Wednesday for El Centro, where they will make their future home. They will travel by wagon.
